Open-Air Theatre, at Manhattan Beach, will be different in many respects from those of a week ago. The fete ecene or feast of lanterns, "Japan in fire and flame," has been so improved that with the instantaneous lighting of almost nnumerable lanterns it produces one of the most brilliant effects seen upon the stage. The spray of flowers of many colors will have a different collection

That popular resort, the Grand Central Palace Roof Garden, has such an overflowing patronage that "Mont" Maze, the proprietor, has saved enough money to go of a vacation at the seashore. He will probably never reach the position attained by the "Monte Carlo Millionaires," which will be presented next week by Williams and Adams, but he is much more comfortably situated on "Easy Street." Other star features on the bill are Perry Ryan, Lulu Ryan and Emma Woods, the "World's Trice," in an act of novelty and surprises that figure and Ah Sid, in their original "Fun in a Wash House;" Dalley and Hilton and their comedy creation, "They're Off," and Stewart and Gillen, the comedy boxing sketch, "Wanted, a New Professor." Other numbers include Mile. Olive, a dainty juggler; Neilie Burt, comedicence; Busch and Devere in their ewn singing and musical travesty, and Ramsdell and Love, whirlwind toe dancers. This is one of the best bills ever presented on a roof garden.

At Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre Williams and Walker, the famous colored stars, will be one of the prominent features next week. Grace Huntington will appear in "Checkmate," assisted by Clarence Heritigh and Frank E. Camp. The rest of the bill is well selected. At the Fifth Avenue Theatre the programme is headed by Mr. and Mrs. Slaney Drew, who will present their comedicates, "When Two Hearts are Won." A prominent specialty will be that of Mrs. Alice J. Shaw and her twin daughters in a whistling novelty. At the Palace, Kathryn Osterman is the head liner in her comedy farce, "The Editor." Jennie Yeamans will give her unique monologue, and the others will go to make up an exceptionally good entertainment.
